Pope Blames Ulstermen's Internment

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 29 (UPI) -- Pope Paul VI today said the strife which has plagued Northern Ireland for two years has been "greatly aggravated" by internment-without-trial orders, but he appealed to "all Christians" to work together in stop the bloodsbed in Ulster. Speaking to a weekly congregation of tourists and pilgrims at his summer residence, the Catholic pontiff called on Christians everywhere to "join our prayers" for peace in Northern Ireland after three weeks of which has killed 36 fighting persons.

"We cannot today, in this screne Sunday meeting, forget 2 country which afflicted by conflicts of hate and blood, has drawn in recent days the attention of the world-Northern Ireland," the Pope said.

"The situation (in Ulster) has recently become emblitered and then was greatly aggravated following the adoption of the exceptional security measures, which were deeply resented, at least by ome citizens," the Pope said.

At Least 25 Dead

Greece and Italy Probe Ferry Fire

BRINDISI, Italy, Aug. 29.-An armada of sbips and planes swept the southern Adriatic today, searching for possible survivors and victims of yesterday's ferry fire in which at least 25 persons were known to have died. Italy and Greece announced separate investigations of the tragedy. Because the total of persons aboard the ship was unknown, the number of missing was indefinite.

The captain of the boot, the Heleanna, a 561-foot, 11,232-ton converted tanker called the world's largest ferry, today denied charges by some survivors that he and his crew were among the first to abandon ship as flames devoured the vessel from prow to stern. Denying also that the ferry was over-loaded, he admitted that he didn't know the exact number of passengers. He said that the fact that there were 1,089 known survivors-passengers and crew members-is "a credit to the crew."

But the surviving passengers were almost unanimous in claiming that the crew did not do enough to help passengers abanilon ship and did not try to quell the panic that erupted as the flames spread from a galley. The fire broke out when the vessel bound from the Greek port of Patras to Ancona in Italy, was 25 miles off the Italian coast. Today, the charred hulk lay 20 miles south of here on a reef where it grounded as towlines snapped when tugs were hauling it toward ahore in heavy seas.

Greek officials dispatched from Athens were trying to board the derelict as part of an official Greek investigation of the fire, the second major disaster in five years for a Greek ferry. Italian authorities said the government would not conduct an official probe because the vessel was not Italian and because the disaster occurred outside Italy's territorial waters, but the Brindisi port authority made the captain, Demetrios Antipas, 43, fill out a 13-page questionnaire. A report on his answers was to be submitted later to an Italian magistrate.

"All passengers were alerted when the fire broke out, and all were alerted to abandon ship," Capt. Antipas told newsmen. Denying that lifesaving equipment was insufficient, lie said: "We had about 1,000 life vests and, as far as I know, all were distributed." There were also sufficient lifeboats and rubber rafts, he declared, adding that the passengers' manic in the 6:15 a.m. fire made it difficult to lower the lifeboats. One cracked in two, rai the persons in It perished, witnesses said.

A Lloyd's of London repre-sentative in Brindisi said that the ferry's safety certificate limited its passenger load to 954. In Rome, officials of the Merchant Marine Ministry said the. Heleanna was "certainly overcrowded."

Complaint to Police

Witnesses asserted that some of the ferry's 12 lifeboats were never lowered, and that others took off only a fraction of their capacity of 58 persons. Many passengers leaped overboard in nightclothes and life vests. Of the 1,089 rescued by nearby ships, 271 required hospital treatment. One man died today in a hospital.

Piergiuseppe Fiorito, an en-gineer from Milan who was a passenger, went to the Brindisi police headquarters to file a civil complaint against the ferry's captain and its owner, C.S. Efthymiades, alleging that they did not fulfill their obligation to help passengers. "The cap-(Continued on Page 2, Col 3)

31 Killed in Crash of Hungarian Airliner

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 29 (UPI) -A Hungarian Ilyushin-18 turboprop plane with 34 passengers and crew aboard crashed into the sea last night, one minute before it was due to land at Copenhagen's Kastrup Airport.

Airport officials said that passengers, sitting in the rear of the badly damaged plane, had survived. Twelve bodies have been brought out of the wreck by skindivers. Police Identified the survivors as Greta Meisner, 24, of Norway, her 61-year-old mother-inlaw. Martha Schnelder of East Germany, and Juergen Hermann, 31, of Berlin. Doctors at Copenhagen's Municipal Hospital said Mrs. Schneider suffered a leg fracture and Mrs. Meisoer was suffering from shock, Mr. Hermann sustained only cuts and bruises. A commission, led by State Aviation Director F. Huevos.

C. E. Weibol, Kastrup Airport manager, said it appeared the the Hungarian pilot had attempted an emergency laoding in the sea. But the impact was violent and a wing torn off and the front part of the plane compressed. The airport control tower said that the plane's approach to the landing strip, watched on radar screens, appeared to be normal. However, the plane suddenly disappeared from the radar screen. It was raining at the time.

Today, airline officials said that they fild not have any clues to the cause of the crash. Skindlyers worked throughout

Greek Civilians No Longer Need Sign Loyalty Pledges

SALONIKA, Greece, Aug. 29 (AP).-Premier George Papadopoulos announced last night that Greek civilians would no longer be obliged to sign loyalty statements to the regime.

The announcement apparently meant that a controversial draft law on the journalistic profession which forces newsmen to sign a loyalty statement would now be Mr. Papadopoulos made the announcement in a rambling 45minnte radio address to the nation. He said next year will be a year of development for the state administration. Then he surprised his audience hy saying:

'No Greeks will any longer be obligated to sign loyalty statements except the armed forces and the security corps." No Leftists

Loyalty statements have always been requested of civil aervants and persons employed in sensitive posts. Anyone with a leftist background was usually excluded from state employment. Papadopoulos indirectly criticized the United States when he said, "If they wish to renounce their allied obligations, wa will not renounce our alliances. We will fight all alone if we have to." The U.S. House of Representtatives voted earlier this month to sever $118 million in military aid to the Greek regime for its reluctance to restore representa-

'Transit' Reported Key Part of Berlin Pact

By Lawrence Fellows

BERLIN, Aug. 29 (NYT) -A text purported to be that of the Berlin draft agreement reached last week by the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Britain was published here yesterday. It provided what was called "the simplest, quickest and most privileged treatment known in international practice" to traffle to and from West Berlin.

The text, which took up a full page in Bild Zeitung, a lively but politically conservative news-paper with the biggest circulation in West Germany, was said to include all the "essential parts' of the agreement worked out tentatively by the representatives of the victorious powers of World War II after nearly 17 months of

After the agreement is given formal approval by the four governments, East and West Germany will negotiate details. These accords will be included in a final protocol signed by all parties

Apart from transit to Berlin, common rail and truck tariff and technical operation in railway administration are to be arranged by the Germans.

Heavy Turnout In Saigon Vote For Assembly

By Peter A. Jay

SAIGON, Aug. 29 (WP).-South Vletnamese voters, amid charges of fraud, blizzards of propaganda and scattered instances of Communist harassment, turned out in record numbers today to choose a new 159-member national assembly

According to early, unofficial figurea released six hours after the polls closed at 4 p.m., 5.567,446 voters, nearly 80 percent of the electorate, participated in the election. There were 1,242 can-didates in the field. No particular pattern was immediately dis-cernible, although several antigovernment candidates appeared to be assured of election in the showcase district in Saigon. The first rural returns were not expected until early tomorrow and officials estimated that it might be two days before all results were in and formally tabulated.

2 Germanys Said to Trade Prisoners

BONN, Aug. 29 (Reuters).—East and West Germany have just completed one of the biggest swaps of spies for political prisoners since the country was divided the mass-circulation Sunday newspaper Bild am Sonntag reported today.

The paper said the exchange was made between the West German government and East Germany's Ministry for State Security at Herleshausen, the Hesse-Thuringia border-crossing point, last Wednesday.

It said the East Germans asked for the swap before the next round of talks between officials of the twe states to negotiate details to be incorporated in the recently concluded four-power draft agreement on Berlin.

Ten Red Agents Freed Some East German agents and secret couriers were set free without being formally charged or coming to trial, the paper wrote. A number of spies already sentenced were pardoned and also immediately released, Bild said. In exchange, the East Germans freed what were called political prisoners, four ef whom had served several years of life sentences. While agents held by West Germany were assembled at a border-force barracks in Bad Herlesfeld, the prisoners in the East were held at Eisenach, just acress the berder, waiting for

"If this thing works, we'll knock together a secend one and send it out to heip." a Navy spokesman said.

The heavy eil, spilled during a Navy refueling exercise

last week, has now thickened from evaporation into "a thick oil-tar sediment that's gooey like asphalt," the Navy said. "It's floating around out there in hunks from the size of golf balls to about the size of dishpans. We tried to send a PT boat out to churn it up with the propellers, but the stuff is so thick it just rolls up befere the bow like carpeting." the spokesman said.

President Nixon's private beach at the Western White House is part of the shoreline that was fouled by the chunks of black goo. The pollution also dirtied his favorite swimming beach at the Camp Pendleton Marine Cerps base next door. The President tried to swim in the ocean, viewed the pollution and returned to his pool. While he was en the lawn Friday, up trotted Timahoe, his Irish setter. There was a black smear on the dog's red coat.

A Major Labor Complaint This has been one of organized labor's prime complaints in its opposition to tha freeze. Mr. Usery's statement appeared to be part of the Nixon administration's new efforts to placate union leaders.

Mr. Romney proposed that any control machinery that follows the freeze include profits as well an wages, salaries, prices and rents. He said he was speaking for himself, not for the administration or the Cost of Living

In Los Angeles, Sen. William Proximire, D., Wis., offered some hints to what the joint congressional committee he heads may recommend for controls after the Sen, Proxmire said that any program required full cooperation and acceptance of labor and management. To be equivable and win labor support, it should also include limitations on profit, interest, rates and executive compensation, he said.

Further, it should be selective, applying only to major corporations and unions, he continued. "It would not be practical to try to deal directly with every working man and every company."

Romney Analyzes Problem

At a news conference Mr. Romney said the primary economic problem is that "our economy is no longer predominantly based on a policy of free competitive enterorise."

Such words would have been considered heresy in the Nixon administration before the new program was announced Aug. 15. Until then Mr. Nixon had pinned his hopes on the free market mechanism and said the government could rely solely on monetary and fiscal policy to moderate the swings between prosperity and recession, maintain full employment and check in-

be allowed to charge either the 1970 holiday rate or the price in effect when Mr. Nixon's freeze order was made effective on Aug. 14.

Mr. Weber said automobile manufacturers will be able to price their 1972 models at the introductory price of the 1971 cars, if they so choose. "To qualify, prices and wages must show a distinct fluctuation at a specific, identifiable point in Mr. Weher said. "There must also be a documented and established practice that has taken place in each of the past

If prices or wages qualify as seasonal by the council's criteria, Mr. Weber said, the "seller is permitted a choice of base periods to use in determining his ceiling price or wage." "He may use the statutory base period-30 days prior to Aug. 14 or the most recent 30 days when sales were made-or he may use the same seasonal period for 1970," he said.

Discount Sales

Mr. Weber noted that the statutory base period is usually the tima when automobiles are selling at a discount, in order to clear showroom floors for the new models. Auto manufacturers and dealers now can choose the base period.

"The important thing here," he said, "is that each seasonal price change must be tied to a specific date, for example, the introduction of new car models, the end of a specific month as in the case of traditional August furniture sales, the onset of a specific holiday such as Labor Day, or the start of a particular harvest

A council spokesman insisted that the ruling on automobile prices does not constitute approval of any price increase-although he conceded that prices on 1971 models at the time the freeze was imposed probably were lower than they were a year

Lindsay Says GIs in Germany Not Getting Grits, He Won't Seek Congress Hungers to Know Why

Rep. William E. Minshall, R., Ohio, made the disclosure after a trip to U.S. bases in Germany, where he interviewed soldiers about Army chow. Many of them told him: "We

The Popular Will

South Vietnam has been the subject of much justified foreign and domestic criticism. And yesterday's voting for the legislature was not spared: the multiplicity of eandidates, the severe restrictions on campaigning, were set against the appearance of a large number of "peace" candidates in appraising the value of the balloting as an expression of the popular will.

North Vietnam, of course, and the Viet Cong have also issoed judgments against the electione. Bot the worth of those strictures is more than doubtful, not only because these areas and groups don't believe in elections, but because they have been casting their own ballots during the poli with mortar shells, kidnapping and assorted acts of Terror has been romanticized of late, even by its objects. It is argued that terror is the only recourse of those who are denied the right of imposing their will upon tho population at large; that terror involves a far deeper personal commitment than marking a ballot or pushing the lever on a voting machine; that terror thus, somehow, acquires a higher moral status than rigging elections by stature, or corruption, or even than winning them honestly within a system the terrorist opposee.

That terror may be explicable in terms of a reaction against long oppression is one thing. That it bears any resemblance to an

The forthcoming presidential election in expression of genuinely popular will can be purely coincidental. American history has, more than once, been diverted by the assassination of a president. In each case there has been controversy over the extent of discontent behind the killings and the precise nature of the act, or conspiracy, that caused them. But virtually no one is prepared to assert that they were not directed against the freely declared will of the American people. And m the one instance in which a real conspiracy is known to have inspired an assassination—that of Abraham Lincoln—the quality of the conspirators was of such a low order as to make the whole a kind of grisly jest.

> Virtually every country in the world has to face up to terror as a potential or actual weapon of politics. The depth of despair bohind the terror, the means used to combat it may vary from nation to nation. The world has become skeptical enough of its institutions so that the possibility terror may to some extent be legitimate is almost never ruled out. But once it is assumed that terror is always legitimate, or at least always carries its own condonation, there is grave trouble ahead. Bombs and bullets in themselvee have no ideology; those who direct them against their fellow humans bear a terrible responsibility, whether they wear the stars of a general or the blue jeans of a young revolutionary. Terror and war are the last arguments of the popular will. its worst, and least justifiable expression, accred its first solid victory on the international front with the announcement by the Japanese government that it would float the yen.

When the United States cut the dollar loose from gold two weeks ago, it was aiming at a realignment of exchange rates that would increase the competitiveness of American goods. The yen was the key to that realismment.

To Japan's credit, once it moved it acted gracefully and without rancor. The Sato government has even demonstrated that it has learned some lessons that will be in Japan's own long-term interest, especially if Japan now overcomes its mercantilist policy of excessive emphasis on expanding international trade as a means of increasing national wealth. In announcing its decision to float the yen, Tokyo stressed that it would use fiscal and monetary policy to prevent a domestic recession and to shift resources toward meeting preent social needs—a shift that should prove of great benefit to Japan.

With the yen moving toward a more appropriate rate, the United States will be in a much stronger bargaining position in working out a new relationship between the dollar and other currencles; this is the eseential condition for bringing about lasting improvement in America's balance of pay-

Once that goal is in sight, the administration will have a notable opportunity to lead the world in a renewed drive for freer international trade and investment. If the United States chould miscalculate and cling to the protectionist 10 percent import surtax after that impost served its stated purpose as a bargaining weapon, other nations could be forced into retaliatory moves and the administration would wind up snatching defeat from the jaws of victory.

At home the principal problem for Mr. Nixon ie to gain the support of organized labor in stopping inflation. Provocative as some of labor's positions have been on the wage-price freeze, it is also true that administration officials have in too many cases gone out of their way to inflame the differences.

Fortunately, the administration now shows a recognition that every reasonable effort should be made to enlist labor's voluntary cooperation if an effective stabilization program is to follow the present 90-day freezo. The worst thing that could happen to the nation after the freeze ends would

President Nizon's new economic policy has be a wage-price explosion. That would wreck hope for orderly growth, which must depend on converting increases in gross national product from mere price increase to real gains in national output and employ-

> An ootburst of inflation would send interest ratee, which are now coming down, soaring once more. And a test of strength between the administration and the labor movement could have a paralyzing impact on the national economy through widespread strikes. The President cannot surrender to labor's dictation on what a new program should contain, but it is in the nation's interest that maximum effort be made to avoid a destructive confrontation.

Labor has no right to insist on special preference in any plan for wage-price restraint in the post-freeze period. It does have a right, however, to seek assurances that labor will not be treated inequitably. This will mean keeping an overall lid on prices-and going beyond that to an insistence on price reductions in industries where productivity is rising faster than wage increases. With such balance must go a legislative program that is not heavily weighted toward big business while providing only a "soup bone"-to use Walter Heller's word-for labor, consumers and the poor.

In both its domestic and international policies, the administration can eccure the growth and stability it seeks only by demonetrating its willingness to move from narrow, economic partisanship to a broader concern for the interest of others. The success of the President's entire program rests on building such a spirit of cooperation at home and abroad. The expansion of the domestic economy depends heavily on stimulus that would be provided by devaluation of the dollar in relation to other currencies. Increased flexibility of exchange rates, to which other countries must agree, will permit the United States to resume fiscal, monetary and interest-rate policies for full employment without undermining America's international position.

Similarly, an end to inflationary expectations, so essential to encouraging consumer expenditures and business investment, cannot be secured without the understanding and support of labor. Mr. Nixon'e task is to make his new economic policy one that will command the respect of those who are not automatically on his side.

International Opinion

Peking Si, Havana No

President Nixon's forthcoming visit to China has taught us all to expect the unexpected. Inevitably then, when Fidel Castro chatted and shook hands with American volleyball players in Havana, and talked hopefully of more sports exchanges between Cuba and the United States, some people were tempted to put two and two together -and make five. The chances of a meeting between Dr. Castro and President Nixon are nil. The possibility of an official rapprochement between the two countries is remote.

From the American point of view Cuba is no longer the irritant it was. But that is no reason to provoke the right-wing backlash in the United States which swallowing hie past worde about Dr. Castro would mean for Mr. Nixon. The United States ean safely ignore Cuba as it could not ignore 700 million Chinese. Dr. Castro's invitation to the American volleyball players is little more than a good sporting gesture. At the recent Pan American Games in Colombia, after all, the Cubans beat their North American rivals in many events.

The Balkans' Geopolitical Potpourri

By Dan Morgan

BELGRADE.—It is a long time since an Englishman's eleamy forecast, "There will be trouble in the Balkans in the spring," became a metaphor for continental violence and unrest. One of the unsung achievements of the postwar ers has been the peace and prosperity in what was once casually called "the Powder Keg of Europe."

This makes it easy to forget that the Balkans is still a geopolitical potpourri, where client states of America, the Soviet Union and China coexist in an area only slightly larger than New England. In that context Hungarian press assertions that China is building an "anti-Soviet bloc" in the Balkans have a certain menace. It has been only a few weeks since the emergence, at a Crimean summit meeting at which Romania was absent, of an explicit Soviet doctrine barring noutrality for Communist states in the Sino-Soviet dispute.

Since then the Yugoslev press has intensified its peppery policies with Moscow, warning of "force and pressure," and complaining of and charging that the Chinese bugaboo was a "nightmarish and Cassandra-like hal-

Geographically the Balkans is the peninsula formed by the Adriatic, Aegean and Black seas. Others say that the Balkans are really a state of mind, "tangled, desperate, divided," that extends right up to the Landstrasse in Vienna. Semantically, "to balkanize" is "to divide into small antagonistic states."

In their contemporary context the Balkans have begun to live down their reputation for explosiveness, but not for ambiguity. If there is any key to making sense out of the crazy quilt po-litical configurations in the area it is nationalism. Nowhere has nationalism had a stronger comeback than in the Balkans.

The curious alliances or, in the case of Communist Yugoslavia, non-alliaoces, are all a function of this nationalism, and each country striving for independence. And in some respects China is the ideal ally—a powerful friend which is far away. Just as Albania's shift in 1961

Today there is still an implicit nationalism in Bulgaria's refusal to recognize the Macedonian nation as having a separate identity from Bulgaria. This ambiguity has been enough to leave doobts about its long range intections toward the Republic of Macedonia in Yugoslavia.

Old prejudices and emotions do play a part in the contemporary Balkans, as was seen this spring when tensions in Yugoslavia between 8.4 million Serbs and 4.2 million Croats reached their highest level in 25 years. It is probably true, for instance, that the Russians are liked by the Buigarians, who are follow Slavs, and heartfly disliked by the Rome-nians, a Latin people. It is also probable that Montenegrins feel a nostalgic kinship with the Russians while their fellow South Slavs, the Slovenes and Croats, having lived in the Austro-Hungarian Empire, feel nooe at all. It is taken for granted that the Albanians, who are ethnically and linguistically unique, fear and

Yet geopolitics is gradually replacing the old prejudices as the main determinant of national policies in the Balkans. This is one reason for the draw-death, so there is less feeling that U.S. support is needed.

Anti-American incidents ended when the present government and martial law were shoved in by the generals. The regime has since made a conscious effort to warm up feelings toward NATO and the U.S.A. Western Destiny "Probably martial law helped strengthen our position by silene-ing extremist propagands," says eign Minister Osman Olcay. "But also there is more reliance drummed up by a well-organized if small leftist minority, largely from the educated class, and used ple. They are convinced that theirs is a Western destiny." The tension that had persuaded some leading Turks to fear a possible explosion only a year ago has now simmered down. Cabinet and smiling since Stalin's ministers can make pro-American statements without fear of being stoned (since, among other things, armed soldiers and gendarmes patrol the streets) and U.S. Navy vessels can again visit Turkey without fear of riots,

The government recently enacted a ban on opium growing by Turkish farmers, a measure hound to please Washington although done in the interest of Turkey's own health and economy. No other regime dared take this dramatic step.

But the big thing is the steady paring of the U.S. military contingent. This has now been reduced to 15,000 (with dependents) and is still going down-although not fast enough. Four thousand is probably an adequate figure. Fewer Americans mean fewer incidents. And incidents involving foreigners remind the Turks of "capitulations" which, throughout much of their history, conferred special legal status on certain foreigners. The way to guarantee a sen-

Dangerous Seeds

Such a drawing together of the Balkan countries can only be welcomed. For the area still contains the seeds of potential enplosions. A million, mostly poy-arty-ridden Albanians in Yugo-slavia, and 1.6 million Huogarians in Romania, both groups living contiguously with their ethnic motherlands, worry both Belgrade and Bucharest. In 1968, ricting among Albanians protesting oppressive Serb policies made lt seem that Tirana had decided to play the dangerous card of incitement. But after 1968 a thaw with Belgrade rapidly set in and

This July Hungary reminded Romania that lt. too, was concerned about the correct political development of the Hungarians in Transylvania. At present both Belgrade and Bucharest are following a policy of concessions to the minorities. Balkan political instincts, of course, have been sharpened by centuries of being used as pawns of the hig powers. It was therefore no surprise when President Ceausescu, just back from a June tour of China, said the days of ontside exploitation of the Balkans must never return

Peking's Role

The trouble is that in the view of the Soviets Romania has clearly sinned. Its party recognizes equally the achievements of the Soviet and Chinese revolutions, socks relations with all 13 ruling Communist parties and refuses to acknowledge the line of national communism. Ceausescu, like Tito of Yugoslavia before him, has won mense prestige in his own country and there can be no turping back for him.

Given the distance of China, and the level of its economy, the idea of a Peking power bastion in the Balkans is hard to take as anything but the "hallucination" the Yugoslavs say it is. But Peking is clearly building a presence. For the first time in many years China will have an exhibit in the Zagreb Trade Fair. On Aug. 16, the highest ranking Chinese military delegation to visit Eastern Europe since 1969 arrived in Tirsna, Albania, after a stopover in Bucharest that some thought was preparing the way for a top-level visit of Premier Chou En-lai, The world's political alignments

So, while there is no magain defiance of the Communist gove ernmeot in China, there is ob viously some defection by the young in the border areas, an the reason for their defection . interesting.

The British interrogate th young Chinese defectors ver carefully. They estimate that while they intercept between +0 and 500 every month, two or thretimes that many make their wa: to Hong Kong. But even when they laod here, the young delectors are not saying that they are political refugees but mainly that they are economic refugees, look. ing primarily for a better chance for education in Hong Kong. So these two totally different worlds coexist within a few swimming miles of each other. Peking seldom mentions Hong Keng. Hong Kong has its Chinese Communist political head-quarters. The Chinese travel bureao operates here with efficiency and elaborate courtesy and guides confused Americans from Kowloon to the Chiceso border. The press covers the activities and disputes of Communist and anti-Communist parties as if this were a local and not an international concern. In short, Hong Kong is a

The Chad Army was under such pressure from the Sahara rebels that in 1969 Mr. Tombalbaye called for urgent aid from France, which sent in 1,000 troops of the Foreign Legion under z motual-defense pact.

The Legionnaires were withdrawn in July. The remaining 600 French military "advisers" in Chad were confined to barracks during the coup, a French milltary spokesman said.

Unconfirmed reports indicated the National Front for the Liberation of Chad (Frolinat) was responsible for the revolt.

The Frolinat rebels are based in the Sahara near the southern Lihyan border. Their leader is Abba Siddick who runs the movement from Tripoli with the approval of the Libyan rulers, government sources said.

Government officials however did not confirm the reports that it was a Frolinat-led conp that has forced Chad to face its worse crisis since 1963. The attempted coup came after Mr. Tombalbaye imprisoned several leading politicians opposed to his one-party

Sadat Bares Sit-In Strike At Steel Plant

CAIRO, Aug. 29 (UPI).—A small number of Egyptian workers staged a sit-in strike at the Helwan iron and steel works near Cairo and held thousands of workers captive inside, President Anwar Sadat said tonight.

He told the central committee of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's sole political party, that the striking workers had also held the chairman of the Egyptian labor federation for a night inside the factory.

He reported that the workers had been protesting that some of their demands were not met, but did not make it clear when the strike was staged.

It was the first such incident since the Helwan workers staged demonstrations in 1968 to protest what they considered lenient court sentences against officers of responsibility for Egypt's defeat in the 1967 war with Isreal.

Mr. Sadat said he had been kept in the dark about the strike by the ministers of industry and interior, who chose to solve the problem themselves.

"Otherwise," he said, "I would have acted differently and taken different measures. Strikes and sit-in strikes are not a democratic way of expression and are not acceptable to the party, the state or the government.

Beirut to Buy Part of Arms From Russia

BEIRUT, Aug. 29 (Reuters) .-Lebanon will buy Soviet-made wespons for the first time-as well as Western ones-under a new armament program approved by the parliament here after a heated debate.

Bliss Saba, Acting Defense Minister, in a press statement published here yesterday, said, "We will buy arms from the Soviet Union, I have visited Moscow and was offered very attractive prices.'

Since the last French troops withdrew from Lebanon in 1946 after the country won independence, the government has bought its arms from the West, mainly from France, the United States and Britain

The plan was approved despite atrong opposition from three main blocs in parliament—the National Struggle Front, led by Kamal Jumblatt, head of the Progressive Socialist party; the National Liberal party, headed by former President Camille Chamoun, and the Phalangist party, led by Pierre Gemayel.

By Alden Whitman NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (NYT).-Bennett Cerf. 73, one of the counried in 1947. try's foremost book publishers, died late Friday night at his estate in Mount Kisco, N.Y. The cause of death was not immediately determined, but Mr. Cerf had recently been discharged from Lenox Hill Hospital following surgery. Last December he underwent a major abdominal operation at the hospital.

Few book publishers were more widely known than Bennett Alfred Cerf, although he was more often identified as a television personality, raconteur, joke teller. author, lecturer and party-goer than he was as the publisher of such disparate writers as James Joyce, John O'Hara and Charles

Mr. Cerf was a co-founder in 1927 of Random House and also founded the Modern Library series. Indeed, the public side of his extroverted personality, which was exhibited for 16 years as a weekly panelist on the television parlor-game show "What's My Line?." tended to obscure his almost 50 years of less conspicuous activity as a powerful shaper of the counliterary and cultural life. Yet his importance was surely greater as a publisher than it was as a retailer of quips and puns, for it was his Random House that broke the federal censorship ban on "Ulysses" in a landmark case, published Marcel Proust and underwrote the career of William Faulkner. Flair for Promotion

With a flair for commerce and advertising promotion, Mr. Ceri was something of a blithe spirit in the book world-a man quite different from the staid, tweedy gentlemen-publishers who dominated American book houses prior to the nineteen-twenties. Whereas publishers tended to insist that all their books contain literary merit, Mr. Cerf had a keen eye for the sales chart and the balance sheet. Thus it was that he published Plato and Franz Kafka and Eugene O'Neill along with many writers who catered to more transient public whims.

In other important respects Mr. Cerí also differed from both his ivory-tower predecessors and his contemporaries. One of these was his avid engagement in nonpublishing activities, chlefly "What's My Line?," on which he started in 1951. The show, in which panelists attempted to guess the occupations of various guests, made Mr. Cerf a national celebrity. "I have to remind people I'm a publisher." he once said as he was being sought ont for his autograph.

Another activity that set Mr. Cerf apart from his fellow book was his subtrade as a jokesmith. Jokes concected or recounted by him appeared for many years in the Saturday Review and in newspapers that bought his syndicated columns. His collected jokes also were that had total sales of more than five million copies. His most recent book, published by Doubleday, was called "The Sound of Laughter" and he introduced it by saying in the foreword: "It is aimed straight at your jocular vein, and I can only hope that detractors will be limited to a Boeing 747."

Mr. Cert's jokes included these: Have you heard about the sultan who left a call for seven in the morning?

· A maker of eyeglasses has just moved his shop to an island off Alaska, and is now know as an optical Aleutian.

Mr. Cerf's multiple activities, cultural and otherwise, brought him about $375,000 a year, much of which he spent on the full life. This included a town-house on East 62d Street and his 42-acre estate in Mount Kisco.

The publisher married twice. His first wife was Sylvia Sidney, the actress. They were married in 1935 after a lengthy and spectacular cross-country courtship, but the union lasted less than a year. His second wife was Helen Nichols, who, as a child actress, had changed her name to Phyllis Fraser. They were married in New York in 1940 with Mayor Piorello H. LaGuardia officiating.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia

55 Years in Power

Haile Selassie at 79

By Stanley Meisler

ADDIS ABABA - Emperor Haile Selassie 1 of Ethiopia is a tiny, aged man with a limp handshake, an almost inaudible voice, and a walk so stiff that his knees seem to rise on a puppeteer's string.

In the long reception room of his palace, the five-foot-two emperor hardly seems like an imposing figure. With his curled gray beard and crinkled brow, be seems bewildered and lonely, re-ceiving guests while his pet Chihuahuas scamper across the carpets.

Yet all guests believe that a ruthless, shrewd, powerful per-sonality must be hidden by the slight, timid appearance of the 79-year-old emperor. He has rul-ed the Ethiopian empire for 55 years, a reign rivaled in history only by monarchs like Louis XIV and Queen Victoria. No ruler in the world today has ruled longer, and history belies his appearance. The contrast of figure and persymbolizes a great number of other contradictions and contrasts about the emperor. 'Elect of God'

' Few leaders of the world enjoy more deference. When he steps out of his green Rolls-Royce. photographers prostrate them-selves on the sidewalk before scramhling up to take his picture. Official proclamations of the government describe him as "Conquering Lion of the Tribe of Judah, Haile Selassie I, Elect of God, Emperor of Ethiopia."

Yet university students, mocking the Ethiopian legend that makes him the descendant of the Queen of Sbeba and King Solomon, call Haile Selassie "the great-great-great-grand bastard of King Solomon."

Nost foreigners agree that only his continued rule guarantees stability for Ethiopia. Christopher Clapham, probably the foremost scholar on the government of Ethlopia, has written: "It is the emperor who holds the state together." Yet his critics are sometimes too awed to blame him for anything. Many opponents of the government ignore the emperor in their criticism and mutter about what they call his incompetent advisers. In the abortive coup of 1960, the conspirators were too fearful to even mention the emperor in their proclamations and propaganda.

He has done more to change Ethiopia than any other emperor in its centuries of history. Yet, put in the perspective of a halfcentury of rule, his changes do not seem very great.

Italian Invasion

Although the outside world remembers him most for his dramatic appeal to the League of Nations after his country was invaded by Fascist Italy in 1935. Haile Selassie's place in Ethiopian history will probably be assessed most by his role in the modernization of his country's feudal society. Admirers of Haile Selassie usually stress two monumental reforms.

First, both as regent from 1916 to 1930 and as emperor after 1930, he broke the power of the nobility. Under his rule, the status of the people has changed from serfs of the nobles to suhjects of the state. He introduced a national army, central taxation, and written constitutions that created a parliament and cabinet. In short, much like the famous English and French kings after the Middle Ages, he solldtfied a state.

Second, Haile Selassie hrought Western education to Ethiopia. In the first decades, the introduction was cautious and slow.

Only a handful of the elite were educated in Western ways, In the last two decades, however, he accelerated the pace.

But eritics of the emperor contend he has been most zealous about reforms that strengthened his own power. By weakening the nobles, Haile Selassie made himself even more powerful than he had been before.

It is the legend and authority of the emperor that hold Ethio-pia together. Ethiopia is a diEthiopia enough, has be created enough polltical institutions to

The Orientals hold, by and large, the unskilled jobs The Afro-Asian came to Israel without education and without skills appropriate to the Western world (many Iraqi Jews are exceptions). Most of those who had somebow acquired learning and skilled or professional status in their Arab homelands migrated to the West, not to Israel, whereas the Ashkenazi migrants-those who came early or after World War II-brought with them the abilities Israel needed in industry. schools and government.

Israel's furious efforts at "positive discrimination" in favor of the Afro-Asian children in education have had little effect: it turns out that schools alone are not the answer, but that the home is all important.

Children from illiterate households-as for example a settlement of Tunisians near the Syrian border where 90 percent of the parents cannot read or write and in which the family vocabulary is meager and books are non-existent-are at great

The Israelis are working hard on the family aspect: qualified girl soldiers-some 500 so fardevote their entire 18 months of service to working in settlements of the new immigrants, teaching the mothers the most elementary skills of running a household. managing a budget, caring for the infants and children.

In the schools, the pattern is a special "long day" and summer session for the Afro-Asians, special tutoring and expansion of nursery schools.

But some educators here are coming to the conclusion that it may need a one-to-one teacherstudent ratio to show substantial results.

For several reasons, housing for the Afro-Asian immigrants is inferior to that for the Westerners.

For the most part, the former have been sent to agricultural settlements while the latter, with their modern skills, find work in the cities, where facilities are

Also, and perhaps most important, the Orientals are the prolific ones, and create their own overcrowding (8 percent of all Israeli familles have produced 40 percent of children under 18; and 92 percent of all large familiesmore than four children-arc Airo-Asian)

Finally-and the political implications here are obvious-Israel so desperately needs the skilled immigrants from the West that it has been giving them the cream of such new housing as Is available (and, even so, less good left. The effect is to give the Afro-Asian Jews tha short end of the deal

The new, distant settlements of the Afro-Asians obviously have fewer physical facilities for service: transport, utilities and the like. Mcreover, the less educated inhabitants are at the disadvantage which ignorance, illiteracy and strangeness bring in applying for and obtaining the Money - great quantities money—can ultimately dissolve the foregoing inequalities. But money alone is no cure for two remaining problems:

The reasons are obvious: today's adult Westerners had the better education: a much larger percentage continued through secondary schools and university; the Ashkenazi were the first to immlgrate and are accordingly the "old hands"; and finally, there is here as everywhere a powerful if often subconscious. tendency to surround oneself with "one's own kind." Israel-a cohesiveness wonderfully There is probably also some social served in the past by a hostile Arab world all around-may be put to severe strain.

There is, finally, the intangible but important matter of status. Just as the 19thcentury Jewish emigrant who came from Germany to America tended to look down at the later arrival from Russia and Poland, finding him a little offensive with his black coat, wide hat, heavy beard and heightened orthodoxy. so the Ashkenazi here is put off hy the Oriental, and feels, If only subconsciously, superior to him, And the Oriental is perfectly aware of it.

This unhappy social and psychological tension is, however, on the way to relaxation. The best cyldence is in the trend of "mixed" marriages, Ashkenazi to. But how much time? Is the rate of improvement fast enough to do its salutary work before there will be bad explosions from a depressed people who have risen to a position from which they can fight for their rights, their

The fact that these are the questions thoughtful Israelis are asking themselves, and that they are worried about the answers. may be the best omen that they will bring about corrections in

A Visit to Havana

A once glorious city is now aging and somber and there is a belief that the Cuban government wants it that way.

By Neil Amdur HAVANA (NYT),-Along Malecon Drive, a bony, whiskered Jamaican, who called him-self "Walker," talked brashly of life in two corners of the world, Harlem and Havana, He had been a "bagman" in Harlem years earlier, he said.

A European View

End of a Monetary System

This is a translation of an article which will appear today in the French newsmagazine L'Express. Mr. Serran-Schreiber, publisher of L'Express, is the nuther of "The American Challenge" and a deputy in the French National Assembly

By Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber

PARIS.—The current general disorder came as no surprise; nor for the moment is it any cause for concern.

The end of the monetary system in force for the last generation is the most important event that could take place, except for war. The construction of a new system is a challenge which is political in the extreme. Thus it is only normal that the public debate should be animated.

If. as Clemenceau said. "War is too serious a matter to be left to the generals," there can be no question of allowing monetary experts alone to negotiote a solution to the present problem. The solution will be found only after collective consideration.

And within the last few days, two men, among others, have added the weight of their experlence to the question.

Ralf Dahrendorf, who, at the GATT meeting, replied in the name of the European Commisslon to Nathanici Samuels, the American delegate, put things very clearly: The monetary problem of the dollar (and, thus of the whole system! is not due to "an unfavorable American balance of payments, but to the constant increase of American investments throughout the world."

Using Figures

He described this increase with just a few figures: American investments in the Common Market came to $2 billion in 1958. they were $10 billion by 1969 and $13 hillion last year. This phenomenon has grown so fast that the U.S. government itself is unable to cope with it. The "American Challenge" also defies the

Through this, we learned that the major currencles should be allowed to float up to their true levels: the Japanese yen should be revalued by 15 percent compared to the dollar; the West German mark by 14 percent; the Canadian dollar by 10 percent and the pound sterling and French franc by about 7 percent.

This fascinating revolution by the IMP will probably be considered to be the harbinger of the new economic system. And this new system will be a universal stock exchange-an adjunct to the international market placewhere the economies of nations will have to agree to be quoted at their real value, much as commercial firms are on the stock exchange. This is precisely what West German Economic Minister Karl Schiller is alming at-although he hasn't said so explicitly-when he proposes that all currencies be allowed to float. The Economist, of London, has come out for the Schiller system: "We are fully in favor of allowing currencies to float. This system will produce many fewer shocks to the economy than the frequent crises which resulted from the valu pretense of trying to maintain fixed parities." There will, of course, be many reflex reactions, uncounted ancient customs, as well as national pride and ideological barriers to reject, and to reject violently, the idea of rating national economies-and consequently, the management of government and their policies-on a world market. But a light is shining through the dark cloud of nationalism. system. The value of a currency will no longer be quoted in relation to gold, but in relating to the management of a nation's ccoromy. Economic experts will decide-as speculators now doon the reting of a currency by busing their opinions on the current situation and forecasts of future management. The study of a nation's economy will have a direct effect on the credit given to the nation's currency. Curcredit allotted to it and credit will depend on management. That will be the new system.

But what sort of management can there be? This is where

Nixon Achieves a Prime Aim in Upsetting Yen Dow Jones Shows 27-Point Gain for the Week

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (NYT). -Less than two weeks after President Nixon's appoundement of a new economic policy, it had accomplished a primary objective: the upsetting of the Japanese

The decision to let the yen float upward in value came Priday after the Japanese government, which previously had spent $2 billion to keep the yen at its relationship of 360 to the dollar, was forced to commit an ad-ditional $1.25 billion.

The rise in the value of the yen-how much it would go up was not certain-meant that Japanese exports everywhere, not just to the United States, would be marked upward in price. For a time at least, Japanese companies selling to the U.S. market might be paying as much as one-fifth more to market their products here, 10 percent by way of the import surtax that was part of the President's program and an additional 10 percent or more by way of the float.

The yen float gave small help to the rally in the stock market, triggered by the new Nixon economic program. At the closing bell Friday, the Dow Jones industrial average was up 27.24 for the week at 908.15 on turnover of 78.5 million shares. This compared with the 34.89-point gain on near-record volume of 105.3 million shares the week before,

The Japanese had hoped to wait until other leading nations had made a response to the Nixon policy before disclosing a etrategy of their own. The fact they were forced to capitulate currencies closer, although much hard bargaining still lay ahead. Uneven Application

One of the problems making a realignment of currencies difficult was the uneven application of the import surtax. Countries that had already revalued or permitted their currencles to float upward were penalized equally with countries that had declined to do so.

This was the chief complaint of such nations as West Germany, the Netherlands and Cans-had been outspoken in their criticism of the President's program. Revival of the investment tax credit, coming atop the administration's liberalization of depre-cistion allowances, would give too much to business; they said. while the increase in the personal income fax exemption would give too little to the working man What's more, in fairness, all capital gains, interest rates and profits should be frozen, not just

This stance, punctuated by some personal derogation by Mr. Meany, cast labor in the unfortunate light of attempting to sink the President's program before it could be properly launched. It ran counter to early find-ings of polluters of broad rank-and-file support for the program. Far from doing anything to mute the labor position, the administration appeared to welcome it. The nossibility of punitive legislation

Realizing that it had committed a tactical error, labor quickly shifted gears. Henceforth, it would fight in the Congress, not in the newspapers or on televi-sion. It would attempt to put its imprint on the tax and spending aspects of the President's program. More important, it would attempt to dstermine the netura of the permanent machinery that emerged from the wage-price freeze and to assure itself a major role in its opere-

If the President's program touched off no immediate upsurge in consumer buying, there were explanations. The fact that tax cuts had to await congressional approval meant that machine tool builders. for instance, who might benefit from revival of the investment tax credit weren't rehiring as yet. Automobile dealers, who might benefit from removel of the 7 percent excise tax weren't able to do more than offer promises of bargains to In fact, because of the hig overhang of 1971 models, the program might be having a per-verse effect on automobile sales. Why should a buyer hurry to buy a 1971 model when he is promised a 1972 at a lower price later?

Despite such anomalies, econemists remained convinced that the President's program would be strongly stimulativo.

The wage-price freeze, it was generally recognized, would make the price indexes look better. But whether it would reduce the real pressures making for higher prices was questioned. Ultimately, the Federal Reserve, through its in-fluence on the money supply, would be the chief determinant of those pressures.

For the moment, it would appear, it will continue to rein in the money supply to counter the effect of waning price increases and to offset the excessively rapid monetary growth of earlier this

Each of the five most active m Fige 9 Calstocks showed gains last week as the market continued its advance motion by Nixon's new economic program.

Amerada Hess added :5/8 .to 55, 7/8 on a volume of 794,800 shores. It thus fell in line with most gaining oil issues. During the previous week, the depressed oil group had not taken part in the general market upswing. Bethlehem Steel rose 2 1/2 to 27 1/2 after trading at a yearly high of 27 3/4. Bethlehem and other steels have been recommended by analysts as beneficiarles of the 10 percent import surcharge and other parts of the economic package. A total of 664,790 shares changed hands. Bunker Ramo climbed one point to 11 1/8 on a turnover of 603,500 shares. Observers noted that a number of low-price issues selling near their 1971 lows posted gains last week. Transamerica, benefiting from numerous Wall Street buy recommendations, moved up 2 3/4 points to 19 7/8 after reaching a 1971 high at 20. Volume was 592,900 shares. Sony Corp. rebounded 1 1/8 points to 17 5/8 as 560,400 shares changed hands. The previous week, the Japanese company dropped 2 1/2 points in reaction

same direction However, if as the International Monetary Fund and a number of nations have proposed, the dollar is devalued by raising the price of gold (i.e., fewer grams of gold backing each dollar), the value of the UA would be adjusted to the reference currency the most stable in relation to gold-in effect revalued against the dollar.

The high cost of borrowing short-term Eurodollars was credited with foreign some late week selling of dollar bonds because the financing costs of dealers' positions was just too expensive. Overall activity was reported to be normal and dollar bond prices moved up a half to a full point. Among the recent issues, the General Motors 8 3/4 percent bond was at 97 3/4 bid, 98 3/4 asked compared with an issuing price of 98 1/2. The 8 1/4 percent notes, sold at 99, were quoted in the same range as the bends. Owens-Corning's 9 percent bond, issued at par, was at 99 1/2 to 100 and the Alriease International 9 percent bonds and 8 1/2 percent notes, both priced at par, were guoted at 99 to 100.

When the diagramed deal was played last month in the Amer-Contract Bridge League's summer nationals, Benito Garozzo of Rome chose the optimistic course of cue-bidding hearts, after his partner made a take-out double of one heart. Over three diamonds he bid three no-trump, and North made a good decision by one-bidding hearts in his turn, suggesting a dislike of no-trump and additional strength Garozzo accordingly jumped to six clubs, a sound con-

On the lead of the heart king, South discarded a spade from the dummy and won with the ace. He led a diamond and West put up the ace and played the heart queen. Dummy was forced to ruff. South cashed the club queen and led to the club ace, disclosing the bad break. He now had to plan a trump coup to prevent East from making a trump trick. Two rounds of diamonds were played, and South discarded a spade, leaving the lead in dummy in this position:

MYSTERIES

By Knut Hamsun. Translated from the Norwegian by Gerry Bothmer. Farrar, Straus & Giroux. 340 pp. $8.95.

Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

GERRY BOTHMER'S new translation of Knut Hamsun's "Mysteries" begins with an enticing promise, as all good stories ought to: "In the middle of the summer of 1891 the most extraordinary things began happening in a small Norwegian coastal town, A stranger by the name of Nagel appeared a singular character who shook the town by his eccentric behavior and then vanished as suddenly as he had come. At one point he had a visitor: a mysterious young lady who came for God knows what reason and dared to stay only a few hours. But let me begin at the beginning . . " What follows is fulfillment of the promise—the utterly absorbing story of the strange young man in the "loud yellow suit," who bewildered the town with his money, his empty violin case and his full vial of poison.

Absorbing is what I meant. Despite the fact that it was written almost 80 years ago, this is no museum piece redolent with the dust of literary respectability. It is as immediate and haunting as last night's dreams (or night-mares). The author knew all the devices of storytelling—how to pique our curiosity; how to attract and repel our sympathies; how to make us want lovers reconciled and evil spirits banished; how to make the sun shine, the rain fall and our flesh crawl. It doesn't take many pages before such questions as Who is Johan Nilsen Nagel? Where did he come from? and What's he really about? seem far more pressing than reality.

to the story's meaning. For instance, just who was the author, Knut Hamsun? Well, he was a Norwegian with the reallife name of Knnt Pedersen. He lived from 1859 until 1952. He spent part of his young manhood in the United States, working at odd jobs and lecturing. His first successful novel was "Hunger" (1890), the first of a trilogy that would eventually include this same "Mysteries" (1892) and "Pan" (1899) (aithough each stands alone). His masterpiece is considered to be "Growth of the Soil" (1917). He was awarded the Nobel Prize in 1920. All of which are bare-back-ground facts that throw little

There the fact that he lived and wrote in a contral backwater where great artists were comparative rarities, for at least in the 19th century, Norway was to Sweden something as Ireland was to England. the front nine that brought him a three-stroke advantage. On the back nine he widened his lead.

"You all look sad," Crampton said as newsmen gathered around him after he had beaten Palmer by three strokes, 69 to 72, in the quarterfinals yesterday morning. The Australian was alluding to Palmer's popularity with the gallery and in North Carolina, where he is regarded as a favorite son since he attended Wake Forest College.

Crampton's ablity to get "up and down" or out of trouble for pars was a major factor in his triumph. He salvaged pars on four holes on the back nine after having been bunkered or in the rough. And at the ninth, following a drive into the beavy grass, he holed a 20-footer for a birdie 4

Crampton, who won the Westchester Classie last year, gained an early lead and Palmer never caught him. A 34 to the turn enabled him to lead by 3 shots. He sank birdies at the second and third holes, and it wasn't until the sixth hole that Palmer could reduce the deficit. He had par three to Crampton's bogey 5. Palmer was bunkered for a bogey at the eighth, however, losing another stroke to Crampton's par. Both had birdie 4s at the ninth. Hit a Tree

Palmer hit a tree and took a par 5 at the 12th, where Crampton recovered from a hunker for-Bunkered again at the next hole, Crampton obtained a par 3, nevertheless

At the 15th, Palmer saved a par by sinking a 12-foot putt after having driven into the pines. At the 206-yard 16th he ran in a seven-footer for a deuce. That left him only two strokes back as the Australian posted a par.

But that was as far as Palmer could come. They both parred the 17th and Crampton hirdled the home hole.

One-Stroke Edge

Graham had a one-stroke edge on Weaver, 36-37, after nine holes on the 8.973-yard course. Weaver still trailed by one after 16 holes. Then he closed with successive hirdles that swung the tide in his favor.

He had a three-footer for a 3 at the 17th and a four-footer for a 4 at the last green, while his rival had pars.

Weiskopf, winner of the Tampa Open earlier this year and the Philadelphia Classic last Sunday, drew even with Still at the last green. He sank a birdle 4 while Still three-putted for a 6. Each had 71s for 18 holes. At the second extra hole, or 20th, Still sank a five-foot putt for a birdie 3 that settled the match.

Rodgers overwhelmed Knudson of Toronto in the quarterfinals with a front nine of 35, or one ed a 40. Enndson was far from his form of Friday when he set a course record of 66 in chiminating Pete Brown

Phillies Gain Split as Wise Halts Giants, Homers Twice

From Wire Dispatches NEW YORK, Aug. 29.-Pitcher Rick Wise knocked in five runs with a pair of homers, including a seventh-inning grand slam, as the Philadelphia Phillies ripped San Francisco, 7-3, for a split of a twi-night doubleheader vesterday.

The Giants won the opener, 5-2, on Willie Mays's 645th career home run and a pair of runscoring singles by Alan Gallagher. Wise's sixth homer of the season and 11th of his career came off reliever Don McMabon and broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh.

Saturday

Byron Browne and Roger Freed opened the inning with walks and McMahon replaced starter John Cumberland. After getting Bob Pfeil on strikes, McMahon walked Tim McCarver, then served up the home run to Wise.

The Giants scored twice on Wise in the first inning when Bobby Bonds and Willie McCovey hit back-to-back doubles and Gallagher singled. The Phils got one back in the second on Deron Johnson's dou-ble and a single by Pfeil. Browne hit his third home run of the season to tie it at 2-3 in the fourth and Wise connected for his fifth of the year in the fifth. The Giants tied it in the sixth when Bonds, safe on an error

by Larry Bowa, scored on Gal-lagher's double to right. The victory was the 14th of the sea-son for Wise against ten defeats. The Giants struck for a pair of third-inning runs in the opener as Chris Speier walked, stole second and scored on Gallagher's single off Woody Fryman, 9-5. Gallagher moved to second on a bunt and came home on Ken Henderson's single. After Ron Stone gave the Phils a run in the bottom of the third with the first of his two sacrifice flies. Gallagher singled home Dick Dietz in the fourth and San Prancisco added a run in the fifth as Tito Fuentes singled, went to third on a walk and an error and scored on Bonds's fly to left. Bob Gibson hurled a three-hitter and struck out 13 as St. Louis blanked Cincinnati, 3-0, at St. Louis. The righthander allowed just three singles and only one Red bascrunner got past first base as he won his 13th game in 24 decisions. Gary Nolan took his 13th loss against 11 victories. allowing seven hits in the five innings he pitched.

Meis 9, 2, Dodgers 2, 1 Cleon Jones hit his 13th home run of the seeson, with two out the ninth inning, and New York beat Los Angeles, 2-1, at Shea Stadlum and swept a dou-

The Poll Cats

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON.—If the Gallup were rising by the hour and Foll is to be believed. Mary argued that unless the food practically everybody in the allowance went up the quality country thinks better ot Presi- of the Bushmore cuisine would dent Nixon because of his wageprice freeze. This is only to be expected in the short run, as Barry Bushmore, who lives down in the next block in our subdivision. could have told the President if anyone at the White House had thought to ask lum.

Baker Lest January. when the Christmas oills started arriving. Barry stunned hia entire family by interrupting the Ed Sullivan Show one Sunday evening for a dramatic announcemeut, "As of today," Barry told them, "I have frozen all allowances, at the level at which they stood last night,
"In addition, I have ordered a freeze on all price-payments. so that no one can pay a higher price for any item than he paid last week."

Barry explained that these. drastic steps were necessitated by the deepening Busin, cre family economic crisis, which was already producing rius on the Bushmore family dollars, and a widespread loss of confidence in the Bushmore balance of payments.

A Gallup poll taken ti;ree days after Barry's announcement showed that 78 percent of the family approved and only 13 perceot disapproved, while 9 percent had no opinion.

On the basis of these findings. Gallup concluded that if the matter were to come to a vote that week. Barry could have been re-elected head of the familv by a landslide, even in the absurd event that sommene else could have been found to contest him for the job.

By early March, Barry was a shattered man, his Gallup poll rating down to a piffling 1.5 percent approval, and that only because two cravenly farming cets, who depended on Darry for their meals, had meawed contentedly about Barry's new economic policy when Dr. Gallup inevitably have to come cown. Barry said no, and that same night they had a dinner of turnip greens and hot water. Barry's children, Harry, Larry and Carrie, came to him next day and asked that an exception be made to the freeze in their allowances. As they were going to have to eat more meals out. they explained, it was only fair that they get more money, Barry refused. That night his wife, Mary, served them all beet cuttiogs and mashed salt.

The cats complained, in that unmistakable manner cats have, that the couch cushions they slept on had become covered with cat hair and ought to be replaced with new, softer couch cushions, which would require an exception to the freeze. But they immediately purred and licked Barry's cuffs when he fold thebthat the easiest way to cut the Bushmore budget would be to kick out a pair of cats who had never done a single foot-pound of work to earu their keep.

Barry liked the way they immediately shaped up. He thought that kind of respect deserved a reward. He suspended the freeze just enough to buy them several tins of salmon-flavored cat food. and gave it to them in the cellar where no one else could notice.

As Barry explained it later, he reasoned that the way things were going with the fracze he was going to need all the friends he could find.

The way things were going with the freeze was trong bad to worse, as Barry told Harry, Mary, Larry and Carrie, day after day, that they would linve to learn the hard lessons of self-discipline and denial, Each time he rejected the plea of one of his loved ones, he would sneak corn to the cellar with salmon-flavored cat food to keep his political fences mended. It was useless, By the first of March the Gallup Poll showed that he had practically no support worth speaking of, which cats certainly aren't A: Mary told him one night, Barry, if you were running for President, you couldn't get a single rate from your own family."

Women's Liberation Attacks King's English

unpopular in some circles, which Emily Toth, writing in 'Womenprefer 'womankind.' 'How can a A Journal of Liberation.'

The very term 'women's lib' is woman MAN the barricades?' asks

By Israel Shenker

NEW YORK (NYT).—When the 78th annual convention of the American Psychological Association opens in Washington Friday, the most astonishing psychological phenomena will be the presiding officers. Instead of turning up as chairman or chairlady, each will have been transmuted into a sexually obscure "chair-

This is the way the language rumbles in deference to vionien's liberation. The leader of the attack is Varda One, publisher of a Los Angeles underground newspaper, who complained in an interview that the English language has forced women to see themselves "through a male mirror which distorts and insults them."

In every issue of Everywoman she shatters another bit of the mirror she calls Manglish. Varda One othis is what she calls "a liberation name"-others have opted for such as Betsy Warrior, Ann Fury and Dair Strugglet is high on the uses of "Person" as aubstitute for Mister, Missus and Miss.

Since "Mr." conceals man's marital state, many women would congeal Mrs. and Miss into like neutrality. Representative Bella S. Abzug. D., N.Y., has opted for Ms. :pronounced ms . Varda One says Congressperson Abzug misses the point: "We don't go around addressing persons by their race, beight or eye color. Why should we identlir them by sex?"

Varda One favors a Nabokovlan pnin-vention—'Pn." (short for Person). "I'd be Person Varda One," she said.

Person H. W. Fowler, of English Usage fame, put the case flagrantly by saving: "A female is, shortly put, a she, or, put more at length, a woman-or-girl-or-cow-orhen-or-at-the-like."

Women liberationists do not like it at The very term "women's lib" is unpopular in some circles, which prefer "womankind.

"How can a woman MAN the barricades?" asks Emily Toth of Baltimore. writing in "Women-A Journal of Libera-

In one English town recently, the town fathers (mothers?) could not decide what to label the municipal conveniences: Geots? Gentlemen? Men? Ladies? Women? The doors stayed locked until the issue could be resolved. As far as many women liberationistsmembers of womankind-are concerned. the issues have not only been joined, but also resolved. Words ending in mistress, such as postmistress and headmistress, offend womankind by laying undue stress on the female element. Great old paintings are meanwhile old masters, never old mistresses, masterpleces, never mistresspleces. On the ashheap of herstory (a word Everywoman has embraced are antique splendors such as doctress, inventress, paintress, presidentess and professoress. Negress and Jewess survive, but not in acceptable speech. Increasingly unpopular with Varda One and others are authoress,

As matters now stand, artisans defying the preferences of the militants say "she" (never he) needs a new coat of paint, "she" (not hel needs new spark plugs. Thar she blows!" they will say of a gusher and advice for recalcitrant machinery is "Give her a good kick" poetess, sculptress.

It is, however, the human race to which we all belong, in a word: MANkind, MAN discovers fire, invents the wheel, and is the measure of all things. Great thinkers are seminal, and even NON-thinkers enter the race as Homo Saplens,

In the menagerie of metaphor, as women have discovered, the male is lion-hearted. never woman. She must twitter her life as a bird, chick or magple. Anyone can be a silly goose, but never a silly gander. Among animals the singularly ideal col-lective is probably "fish"—neutral as to gender, confusing as to number.)

Distasteful words formerly applied indifferently to female or male have come to stigmatize only the former; harlot, whore, wench. Some liberationists—such as Ethel Strainchamps; writing in "Woman in Sexist Society"-are upset that homosexual refers

People still speak of girl Friday and career girl, but not career boy. "Man allve!" is a respectable cry, but never "Woman alive!" "O boy!" never "O girl!" A Harvard man, but a Radcliffe girl.

In her book "After Nora Slammed the Door," Eve Merriam complains that "being called a girl when one is well past the age of consent (or dissent) makes me feel that I do not have to act as a responsible adult not yet, anyway." Varda One has found an appalling richness of words to describe women who nag. including beldame, fishwife, henpecker, shrew and virago. But no tags for male nags. "Penis envy" is in good psychological standing, she notes, but who ever heard of growth envy?

In 'The Growth and Structure of the English Language." Otto Jesperson wrote that English is "the most positively and expressly masculine of the languages" he knew When there are feminine as well as masculine forms, the masculine is listed first-man, woman; male, female; husband, Varda One would drop husband and wife in favor of "partner" (never abbreviated to its first two letters). To reduce confusion in phrases like "he or she," "his or hers," Pn. Varda One invented "ve" for the nominative, "vis" for the possessive "ver" for the objective. A typical Varda version: "A teacher must learn to listen. Ve must respect vis students' opinions. They must be important to ver."

Up against this veil of meaning in the doctoral dissertation she will defend on Aug 30 at Northeastern University, Virginla V. Valian uses "she" as generic pronoun. A typical Valian effort: "The psychological operations a language user performs as a listener are the reverse of those she performs as a talker."

Liberationist writer Mary Orovan suggests that "co" replace "he or she," with "cos" for possessive, "co" for objective, and "coself" for "himself or herself." Dana Densome, writing in the Boston periodical The Fennale State, feels "she" should replace "he or she" since the word "he" is in "she." "Woman" would stand for man as well as woman. For the objective case, Pn Densome suggests "herm" ("her" plus "him") as in hermaphrodite.

The question bothering some is whether one herms the language by proliferating confusion while man decays. When Norman Mailer, chairperson of a debate on womankind used the word "lady" he was roundly upbraided by the women present, though he was only trying to pay a compliment Surnames themselves-e.g. Mailer, Miller, Tiger—are excessively masculine. Robertson means son of Robert, and the name Lucy Johnson is now widely proposed as an example of how ridiculous English can get. Even God has been put in Her place. "Trust in God, She will provide." is old liberationist colnage, and pleased Clare Brothe Luce. 'In Goddess We Trust' has now revalued the currency.

In England, My Lord may still be addressed to a woman judge, but what to do about a governor who is a woman. One can hardly call her a governess.

With many words, the masculine form does double duty; secretary, solicitor, councillor. At the White House, women serve as "While House Fellows," Carol Greitzer elected to New York's City Council, let it be known she wanted to be known as Councilman, then changed her mind-which is a Person's privilege.

Convinced that the dictionary is the most prejudiced book in the language, Varda One is preparing a Dictionary of Sexism. Ains, this is the King's Euglish, not the Queen's. The very alphabet is man's province, and usually replies to his names: Abel, Baker, Charlie, all the way through Roger and out.

PEOPLE:

Jacqueline Onassis attended the tumultuous funeral of a Polish aristocrat in Warsaw and Reutersreported she was hundled off afterwards in a trolley car to escape a throng of thousands of excited Poles.

Mrs. Onassis, wife of the late President John F. Kennedy, flew there Friday night for Saturday's funeral of Count Edmund Radalwill, 65, who died in London after an illness. Her sister, Princess Lee Radziwill, is linked by marriage to the family, who are Poland's leading aristocrats.

Both women joined a virtually uncontrolled crowd of thousands of jostling Poles for the Roman Catholic funeral service in a tiny domed Baroque church followed hy burial in a nearby cemetery. As Mrs. Onassis left the cemetery, a mass of people surged forward. For several moments, she and a young man accompanying her stood anxious and helpiess as the crowd threatened to engulf them.

Then cameramen boosted her aboard a trolley car standing just outside the cemetery. The doors slammed shut and the trolley rumbled off. A few hundred yards further down the street in the Czerniakow district of Warsaw, the trolley stopped and Mrs. Onessis got into her waiting auto. As the car drove back past the cemetery, she smiled and looked relieved after her visible alarm at the crush.

She and her sister arrived from Greece by a special plane be-longing to her husband, Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis. Her children, John and Careline Kennedy, were also in the plane and also attended the funeral. Mrs. Onassis and her children then departed for Athens on the special plane.
